The Frontline Formula: How to Adapt Better Together Speaker: Rob Hosking – Thursday 29 October

In policing, no two situations were ever the same. Rob draws on his experience on the front line to explore why adaptability is essential when facing uncertainty, pressure and constant change. He'll share practical lessons on how to stay agile, adjust your approach and respond effectively when circumstances shift. More importantly, he'll explore how adaptability becomes even more powerful when we build it together, creating teams that embrace change, support one another and remain resilient when the unexpected happens.

About the Speaker: Rob Hosking

Dubbed 'The Mighty Motivator' by Chris Evans, Rob Hosking is an international TEDx motivational speaker and former front-line Police Officer, renowned for his ability to inspire teams and leaders to adapt in fast-changing, high-pressure environments. With years of experience responding to unpredictable situations, Rob has developed a deep understanding of how individuals and organisations can thrive in the midst of uncertainty. His unique perspective stems from his time on the front lines of policing, where no two situations were the same, and quick thinking, adaptability, and resilience were essential.
