Balancing Innovation, People and Safety in the Scottish Housing Sector

Speaker: Emma Willey – Friday 30 October

Changing workforce expectations have transformed how organisations operate. While these changes offer significant opportunities, they also present new challenges for those responsible for protecting their people, supporting organisational change and maintaining safe, effective services.

This workshop session will explore how committee members and staff can both embrace innovation whilst ensuring health, safety, wellbeing and organisational culture remain central to every stage of the change process.

About the Speaker: Emma Willey, BMA, FRSA

Emma Willey, Managing Director of ACS, has over 30 years in Health & Safety, specialising in asbestos, training, and workplace wellbeing. A Boxing Day tsunami survivor who developed PTSD, Emma brings unique insights to workplace wellbeing initiatives that deliver measurable outcomes rather than superficial interventions.

Under Emma, ACS ensures EVH members stay compliant through systematic audits, detailed documentation, and precise implementation of regulatory requirements.
