Attention Intelligence: Unlocking People, Performance and Technology

Speaker: Alexander Bell – Thursday 29 October

Technology gives us the power to unlock our full potential. It's convenient, quick and highly efficient. But success in the workplace today isn't just about efficiency; it's about human connection, presence and meaning. As AI and new technologies accelerate, organisations face a growing challenge, how to harness the benefits of technology without losing focus on what matters most, our people. In this entertaining and interactive keynote, Alexander Bell blends humour, history and science to explore our relationship with technology and reveal how organisations can reframe the digital narrative from distraction and overwhelm to clarity and connection.

About the Speaker: Alexander Bell

With over two decades of experience as a serial entrepreneur and thought leader in technology, Alexander has led teams and built startups with global clients including Google, IBM, and Warner Bros.

Inspired by his journey as a business leader, father, and digital wellbeing advocate, Alexander now travels the globe speaking with audiences and working with clients to help them implement his Attention Intelligence® and Tech Rules® principles to improve internal mindset, boost performance and promote a healthy relationship with technology.
