

Rural Stirling's New Homes

Rural Stirling Housing Association (RSHA) unveiled 11 new homes in the Stirlingshire village of Killearn. These properties represent Rural Stirling Housing Association's enduring work to keep on building affordable homes for rent and low cost ownership.

The development was formally opened by Councillor Willie Ferguson, convenor of Stirling Council's Housing Committee. Councillor Ferguson said: "We are delighted to support this development from Rural Stirling Housing Association. There are many challenges to face in the drive to deliver affordable housing for our communities, particularly in rural areas, which have seen increasing development costs and significant competition for housing sites."

The development cost £2.83 million and consists of four one-bedroom flats, four two-bedroom flats, two three-bedroom houses and a single four-bedroom amenity bungalow. Nine are for social rent while the remaining two are shared equity properties.

RSHA Chief Executive Donna Birrell added: "Our new homes in Killearn represent a further step forward in delivering on our promise to keep on building affordable new homes across rural Stirlingshire. We readily acknowledge the contribution of the Scottish Government and Stirling Council in helping to make these homes a reality."
